Subject: more legal backlash

Josh,

This may only be a blip (or a sign of what's to come).

You should know that Casale Media (a.k.a. Error Guard) has paused any new ad ware campaigns because of heat from Spitzer (see below). What's the big deal? Well, Casale Media is arguably the most aggressive buyer of adware in last 6 mos. and a true online direct marketer (no brand equity to protect or any worries about reputation). We've never seen a hard-core direct marketer like this so much as flinch.

We had paused their campaign about 7 weeks ago for numerous reasons but have been trying to get them up as backfill.

Rob,

Heard back from legal earlier today. They are putting the breaks on any new campaigns that are run through adware networks until further notice. This is the first I have heard of it, however I think it may be due to the recent moves by the NY AG.

I will keep pushing them.
